"With the freedom they gave me and the land they presented, it was a job any good designer lives for. . . I could picture a beautiful, rolling course winding its way through the trees and wetlands. . . I said when we finished the course and I'll say it again- Metedeconk is one of the top 25 courses in the country."

The Environmental Institute for Golf – For more than 50 years, this philanthropic organization of the GCSAA has contributed to the future of the game by initially providing funding for applied research, education and scholarships. Building on this legacy and armed with a new focus, The Institute now funds environmental programs to position golf courses as community assets – recreationally, economically and environmentally.

This event brings together superintendents and representatives from golf courses along the East Coast to raise funds for environmental programs, including scholarships, turf research programs and education initiatives. This event also serves to recognize the critical role played by superintendents in developing the vision of the golf course architect and ensuring the integrity of that vision.

The GCSANJ Foundation raises funds to support education and professional development for its members to become better stewards of the environment. In addition, its mission is to support charities with the purpose of helping children in need. For more information, visit www.gcsanj.org.

Through your support, the RTJ Invitational has been successful for more than 2 decades!

Dear Invited Guests,

It is my pleasure, on behalf of Ryan Oliver and the members of Metedeconk National Golf Club, to invite you to the 2010 Robert Trent Jones Invitational. I am very proud to have been associated with this event for many years along with my brother Bruce and am thrilled to participate in this year's event.

This event would never have come to be if it were not for the vision of Richard Sambol, founder of Metedeconk, and his son Herb who recognized the genius of Robert Trent Jones, Sr. and the interpretation of that genius by Roger Rulewich. Their decision to recognize the significant impact by the Golf Course Superintendent in developing the vision of the course architect resulted in this superb event. This event has also raised several hundred thousand dollars for turf research and scholarships.

Although it has been more than twenty years since the construction of Metedeconk, the memories of driving the course with Mr. Jones and the collaboration with Roger are still quite vivid. Memories of Mr. Jones and Mr. Sambol riding together are also quite clear as frankly how often does one get to work so closely with two legends in their respective fields of endeavor.

Please consider joining old friends in participating in this year's event at this magnificent golf course to continue the tradition of the visions of Messrs. Jones and Sambol. I have no doubt that you and your guests will enjoy a great day of golf and camaraderie. Thank you for your consideration and past support of this event.

Yours Sincerely,

Stephen Cadenelli, CGCS
